Release No. 174.

A CAMBO COMEDY

November 11, 1924.

With

Cliff Bowes and Virginia Vance

Cliff is a young lover with big ambitions and a little car. He's got a Rolls Royce love for Virginia, but a flivver is the best he can afford.

When Cliff calls on his sweetie with the flivver built for two, she very thoughtfully invites all of the family to accompany them on their picnic. After numerous fat brothers and sisters are crowded into the coupe, mother is squeezed in with the aid of man power and off they start.

The gallant flivver gives up the ghost before many miles, and the family suggests that Cliff hire another car. After testing the hired car for an hour they haven't enough gas left to pull a butterfly's tooth. Then the family blames Cliff for not renting a horse and buggy.

The party arrives at the dock and just to make a perfect day more perfect, father falls into the river and of course blames Cliff for the mishap.

It looks like Cliff is making great progress toward winning Virginia's hand. All he has to do is wait until she is an orphan.

This is an amusing little comedy with a regular two-reel assortment of laughs crammed into a thousand feet of length. The comedy happens so fast that patrons in motion picture theatres always wish for more.
